Michael,

This purpose of this letter is to demonstrate support from the Bioscience & Technology Business Center (BTBC) for Sunlite Science & Technology as it seeks to grow its business and operations in the Lawrence community.

The BTBC was created to support and grow the life science and technology industries here in Lawrence, Kansas. It accomplishes this goal by helping local and relocated companies grow and thrive by providing professional office space, business services, and access to resources at the University of Kansas.

Sunlite was the third company to enter the BTBC, which opened in August of 2010. In the three years Sunlite has been a tenant, it has grown its revenues and business operations and now seeks to be the first tenant to graduate from the Main Facility. It serves as a perfect of example of what the BTBC system is designed to do: Support early stage companies with the goal of graduating them into the local community where they can continue to grow and create jobs, resulting in increased taxable income for the City of Lawrence.

It is because of the company's continued success and ability to help achieve these goals that the BTBC offers its support to Sunlite Science & Technology. Although Sunlite may no longer be a tenant in the Main Facility, the BTBC looks forward to continuing to provide support and assistance long into the future.

Sincerely,

Michael Smithyman
Director of Operations
