Subject: Street Name change

Mr. Hamby

Per conversation with Address Management System

The postal service does not own the street addresses so we cannot make decision on name changes, street addresses are owned by the city or counties; the request of any address change has to be made to the city or county that assigns it. They have the final decision then the city will contact the postal service with the changes and the Postal Service updates the changes our data base.

Post office only owns the last line and the zip codes and those are the only things that we can decide to change.

If you have any questions feel free to call me.
